

Indiana has implemented a very successful law to prohibit unwanted telemarketing calls. We do not support any action by the FCC that would reduce the impact of Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law. We formerly received 3-5 unsolicited calls PER DAY from telemarketers...many as late as 9:pm in the evening. These calls have been reduced to zero. The only unsolicited calls we currently receive are from charities, and that's OK with us. Any action to override Indiana's law would force us to purchase Caller ID and other devices to screen these invasive calls. We cannot afford these measures and would resent being forced to do so to protect our "personal time" from these relentless marketing calls.
